EQUALISM

By Shelimo Ahmad

What is equalism

- It is a mode of production which bring equality to member of given society and remove class cause by possession of material things.
- Its major aim is to eradicate poverty and bring richness to all people living in the given society.

Why equalism

- Every person is equal to one another. No need of existence of classes within human population
- If we adjust the economy to fulfill the needs of every one in best and equal means we can remove classes in human population
- By eradicating poverty we can ensure best survival of human being

Why equalism

- Every one born in a society have a right to have a good life that is free from poverty
- Equalism is the new and virgin mode of production which aim in eradicating poverty and classes within human population

Principals of equalism

Equalism is built within three principals which are

1. Every commodity is free of charge.
2. Working is not for gaining material things but is for fulfilling responsibility.
3. Free commodities is only for a people who fulfilled responsibility.

1st principal

Every commodity is free of charge.

In equalism goods are not for sale but they are freely distributed to member of the society. Every person get a share of the goods that are being produced within the society and other exported goods. It is the role of authority to ensure that no selfishness is involved during the process of distributing the goods to the members of community

2nd principal

Working is not for gaining material things but is for fulfilling responsibility.

No salary in equalism. People work to fulfill their responsibility because responsible person must work. In equalism every able person must participate in production. Because people work every day and no one is being paid, this can make the nation very rich in a short period of time.

just imagine all teachers, engineers, farmers and other workers work for sake of a nation every day for free (remember no need of money because goods are being distributed free of charge)

3rd principal

Free commodities is only for a people who fulfilled responsibility.

The third principal aim in stabilizing the system so that it won't collapse. Free goods replace the payment as it occurs in other systems, the goods are distributed after working.
Equalism comes in here because all works are treated equally.
what is distributed after work is basic needs to every person who participated in work

Just imagine

a world with

1. Free education
2. Free health care
3. Free electricity
4. Free water services
5. Free communication
6. Free housing
7. Free transport
8. Every thing for free

Uniqueness of equalism

In equalism no use of money. This is due to fact that every good is distributed freely of charge to every one
No trade in equalism. Equalism remove internal trade that occur within the members of the same community.
The government behave like a father who do everything for his responsible kids and handle all transaction with outsiders
Doing trade involve loss and gain while in equalism no losses but only gains, every one who work earn

How to operate equalism

- In equalism every able person is given a work to do.
- In every working area the is a supervisor who overview the work of every worker
- Every worker has an electronic card that contain his information and the card can be updated every day after the work
- Every supervisor have the small machine that can update the cards of workers

How to operate equalism

- After work every card of the worker is updated so that it indicate that he/she has fulfilled her responsibility of the day
- The card is used as a ticket of getting the goods from the shop.
- There will be a one super market that contain all life necessities in every street. Let say for every 10000 people one supermarket.
- When a person go to supermarket his card is used as a ticket to get goods only if it contain required information

Just imagine
a world where

1.Every one have a good work
2.Every one is able to shop things from the super market
3.No one has to fear about tomorrow
4.Every one is equal to one another

How did I discover equalism

- I discovered this mode of production by reading the story of life in paradise in the holly Quran
- According to Quran, paradise is a place with abundant of resources more than users. According to it heaven is a garden with rivers, milk, fruits, honey and birds meat. Apart from that there is beautiful women and servants who are young non-aging boys

How did I discover equalism

- If you look at the world you will discover that it was a garden too and it still a garden with rivers, fruits, milk, meat, beautiful women etc
- I believe before other mode of production comes into operation, equalism was the first way of life of first human communities when people were few

How did I discover equalism

- After close much thinking and imagining a come to discover the mode of production where we can have the image of heaven life on the earth
- The different between paradise and the world is that the resources are in raw state and they need to be processed so we have to work inorder to consume

How did I discover equalism

- The resource of the world are enough to support the life of human population, problem arise in its distribution, some people has take many than they need and other have left with nothing

- The one who will object equalism is a selfish who lack love to others and want to oppress others. People of paradise loves one another

How did I discover equalism

- Equalism ensure good distribution of the resource in a way that every one take what is necessary and remove selfish oriented manner in the distribution of resources.
- In paradise is neither use of money nor trade just as it is in equalism
- It is possible that we can live life like the people of the garden (Eden or Firdausi while we are in the world)

Role of money in current world

- Money is used as a medium of exchange. With money you can get any goods if you can beat the price.
- It help in getting away the need that we do not consume and acquire the goods that we need
- According to equalism money is the force that make people to work hard so that they can have purchasing power.

Role of money according to equalism

- Every person want to accumulate as much as he can so that he become rich.
- Every nation want to trade as much as possible so that they can be rich
- Money is what makes people to produce.
- In equalism the force that will drive people to work is getting their daily needs and having respect in the community. Lazy people can be punished by society.

Role of money according to equalism

- Life is very complicated when we work for increasing our purchasing power, this is because new goods are produced every day but if we work just to fulfill responsibility
- Working is very important because our life do not depend on money we earn but connection of the work we do, we depend on each other.
- In equalism we will be connected by super market which will bring goods from different areas of works

Industrial production

- Industries require skilled people, machines and raw materials. For already running industries they require constant input of raw materials.
- If the industry has the machines, skilled people and raw material, the limiting factor for production will be market, the will have to produce according to the demand and the need to gain profit. Most industries ensure that no production until there is flow of goods from their store to the market.
- In Equalism where workers has no salary and raw materials will be available to the industry for free. This is because the people who produce raw materials are getting their basic needs. The industries will have to produce their goods and sent them direct to the super markets for free distribution.
- If there other requirement that are required for the industries the government will purchase them after selling surplus goods to other countries

Where is the trick

- The trick that people do not understand within other mode of production is that every one who produce want what they produce to be viewed as more valuable than other goods and very important than other goods that is why there is advertisement of goods.
- In equalism every good is of equal value to another and this is only true if equalism dominate the whole world. This is because everything belong to the community and what you get after producing is your share of a day or weak regardless of the type of goods you have produced
- People of the world have lost their mind by making stones more expensive than food only because they are attractive and ending in causing people who deal with minerals to be with high purchasing power than farmers and leaving farmers in greater poverty